

模試 第1回

(100点 80分)

〔英 語 (リーディング)〕

注 意 事 項

- 1 解答用紙に、正しく記入・マークされていない場合は、採点できないことがあります。
- 2 試験中に問題冊子の印刷不鮮明、ページの落丁・乱丁及び解答用紙の汚れ等気付いた場合は、手を高く挙げて監督者に知らせなさい。
- 3 解答は、解答用紙の解答欄にマークしなさい。例えば、

10

と表示のある問いに対して③と解答する場合は、次の(例)のように解答番号10の解答欄の③にマークしなさい。

(例)

解答番号	解 答 欄
10	① ② ③ ④ ⑤ ⑥ ⑦ ⑧ ⑨

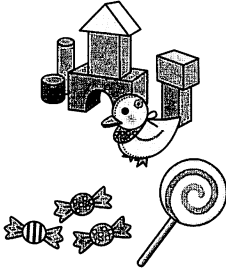

- 4 問題冊子の余白等は適宜利用してよいが、どのページも切り離してはいけません。
- 5 不正行為について
 - ① 不正行為に対しては厳正に対処します。
 - ② 不正行為に見えるような行為が見受けられた場合は、監督者がカードを用いて注意します。
 - ③ 不正行為を行った場合は、その時点で受験を取りやめさせ退室させます。
- 6 試験終了後、問題冊子は持ち帰りなさい。

英 語 (リーディング)

各大問の英文や図表を読み、解答番号 1 ～ 44 にあてはまるものとして最も適当な選択肢を選びなさい。

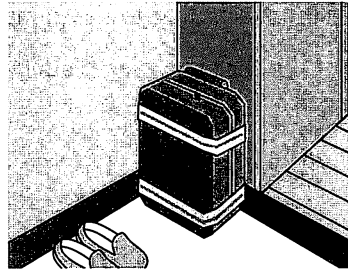

第 1 問 (配点 6)

You saw some news about natural disasters on television and decided to be prepared. You found this useful pamphlet.

Protect your loved ones! Prepare an Emergency Survival Kit
1. Consider possible emergency situations Some homes are at risk of flooding from nearby rivers, while others might be affected by fires, earthquakes, or strong winds. Choose items to include based on whether they are useful in your case.	 fires  earthquakes
2. Gather essential items Keep your kit as small and light as possible. Avoid packing inessential items like pillows, toys, or candies. Each family member should have their own kit, but the kits do not need to contain the same items. For example, one radio is enough, and family members can share a large blanket. On the other hand, food should be separated in case someone loses their kit. The items inside should be separated into smaller, clear plastic bags according to type so that you can find anything you need easily.	 inessential items

3. Store your survival kit

It is important to store your survival kit somewhere in your home where you can grab it in a hurry. Wherever you store it, you should check it occasionally and exchange any old food items for fresher ones.

問 1 The people most likely to benefit from this pamphlet are 1.

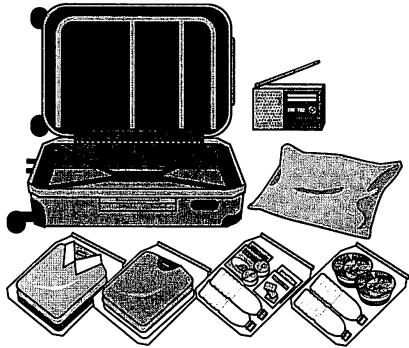

- ① business owners looking for product ideas
- ② parents who need to keep their families safe
- ③ people with dangerous working conditions
- ④ travelers trying to avoid accidents

問 2 Once you have prepared your emergency survival kit, it is a good idea to 2.

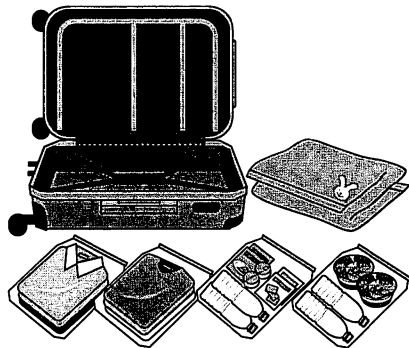

- ① check that your kit is light enough to carry
- ② discuss places to hide in your home
- ③ replace certain items from time to time
- ④ think of things to add to the kit

問3 According to the pamphlet, which picture best shows an emergency survival kit for an average family? 3

①

②

③

④

(下書き用紙)

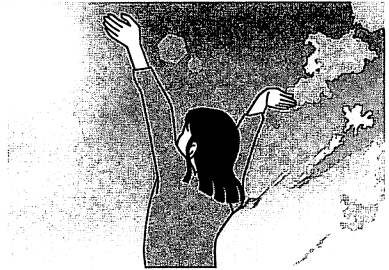

英語(リーディング)の試験問題は次に続く。

第2問 (配点 8)

You need to write an essay in your health education class about how to reduce stress. To prepare, you read this report on a recent TV show about the topic.

Health Chat: Monday Apr. 6 — How to Reduce Stress

On today's Health Chat, we heard from three different health professionals: a psychologist, a brain researcher and a wellness expert. They discussed the different ways we can reduce stress in our daily lives.

All three agreed on the following three ways to reduce stress, not only for our health but for our general happiness. First, they all felt that getting enough sleep was a priority. With a good night's sleep of at least seven hours, it is easier to feel focused during the day. A healthy diet, including avoiding too much sugar and caffeine, was next, as these products can cause your mood to go up and down too rapidly. In addition, getting plenty of exercise can help to improve general health and create a stronger body that can deal better with the ups and downs of life.

There was a little disagreement among the experts on the following points. The wellness expert suggested that yoga and massage were excellent ways of managing stress. The brain researcher agreed that yoga was useful, but just as a form of exercise. He felt that understanding brain chemistry was the key to better mental health and that spending time outside or getting enjoyment from hobbies was a better way of getting your body to produce anti-stress chemicals such as dopamine and serotonin. The psychologist told us that a government report on stress would be released next month, so it might be interesting to see which method would receive the most support.

Finally, the three experts agreed with another of the psychologist's points: that social connections are important and that people who meet friends and family often tend to deal with stress well.

問 1 Which of the following points did the speakers all agree on?

4

- ① Certain foods should not be taken in excess.
- ② Dieting to lose weight is an important step in reducing stress.
- ③ Mental health experts are the best qualified to help with stress.
- ④ Stress causes people's moods to go up and down rapidly.

問 2 It is possible that people who suffer from too much stress may

5

- ① be getting too little sleep during the night
- ② be hoping to see a psychologist for advice on stress management
- ③ be spending too much time on work or hobbies
- ④ be waiting for a government report to give advice

問 3 One of the experts is of the opinion that

6

 .

- ① sugar and caffeine affect your mood
- ② too much exercise has a negative effect
- ③ we shouldn't worry too much about reducing stress
- ④ yoga in itself does not have any special effect in fighting stress

問 4 Which of the following is mentioned in the report?

7

- ① The advantage of professional advice in dealing with stress
- ② The benefit of communicating regularly with others
- ③ The disagreement over exercise as a way of tackling stress
- ④ The effectiveness of dopamine or serotonin supplements

(下書き用紙)

英語(リーディング)の試験問題は次に続く。

読者の注意

本誌に掲載されている記事は、必ずしも最新の事実や最新の学識に基づいて書かれたものではありません。また、本誌に掲載されている記事は、必ずしも最新の事実や最新の学識に基づいて書かれたものではありません。また、本誌に掲載されている記事は、必ずしも最新の事実や最新の学識に基づいて書かれたものではありません。

本誌に掲載されている記事は、必ずしも最新の事実や最新の学識に基づいて書かれたものではありません。また、本誌に掲載されている記事は、必ずしも最新の事実や最新の学識に基づいて書かれたものではありません。

本誌に掲載されている記事は、必ずしも最新の事実や最新の学識に基づいて書かれたものではありません。また、本誌に掲載されている記事は、必ずしも最新の事実や最新の学識に基づいて書かれたものではありません。また、本誌に掲載されている記事は、必ずしも最新の事実や最新の学識に基づいて書かれたものではありません。

本誌に掲載されている記事は、必ずしも最新の事実や最新の学識に基づいて書かれたものではありません。また、本誌に掲載されている記事は、必ずしも最新の事実や最新の学識に基づいて書かれたものではありません。また、本誌に掲載されている記事は、必ずしも最新の事実や最新の学識に基づいて書かれたものではありません。

本誌に掲載されている記事は、必ずしも最新の事実や最新の学識に基づいて書かれたものではありません。また、本誌に掲載されている記事は、必ずしも最新の事実や最新の学識に基づいて書かれたものではありません。また、本誌に掲載されている記事は、必ずしも最新の事実や最新の学識に基づいて書かれたものではありません。

第3問 (配点 9)

You are an exchange student at a UK high school and you found an interesting story on the Internet. You plan to share the story in class the next week.

THE BAKE SALE

It was Day 1 of our school's annual festival, and the International Students' Cooking Club had spent all morning baking. Nisha's jaggery and cardamom cookies represented her culture, while my lokum and kaymak cookies showcased Turkish flavours. Mika had prepared matcha cookies, and Scott was confident of his Australian Vegemite pastries, though the rest of us were not so sure.

"Anyway, let's set a new sales record! We can do it!" I said, looking at the table filled with cookies and pastries from our home countries.

However, Day 1 was a complete failure. People glanced at our table but walked past without stopping. "What's going wrong?" I asked the others, noticing how many people walked by without even stopping. Scott looked at the crowd and then whispered, "Well, Fatma, maybe people don't know what they are. I don't think these flavours are very familiar to them."

At the end of Day 1, we sadly packed up our unsold goods and sat in silence worrying that Day 2 would be the same. Later, we gathered in the classroom to figure out what had gone wrong. We decided that Scott was right, so we created posters explaining each ingredient's origins, popularity, and health benefits. We also prepared small samples so people could taste them before buying.

The next day, things changed. With free samples and clearer explanations, people stopped, tried the food, and became curious. We were busy answering questions and serving customers returning to buy more. Even Scott's Vegemite pastries found a few adventurous customers.

We thought we were doing pretty well. But when we counted our total sales, it became clear — we hadn't broken the sales record. If we had used these strategies from the start, we would have succeeded.

We learned an important lesson that day—planning matters. I decided to leave a message for next year's club members so they wouldn't make the same mistake.

問 1 Which person is telling the story? 8

- ① Fatma
- ② Mika
- ③ Nisha
- ④ Scott

問 2 Choose four out of the five options (① ~ ⑤) and put them in the order they happened. 9 → 10 → 11 → 12

3 → 5 → 2

- ① One member of the group encouraged the other members.
- ② Some customers asked about the baked goods.
- ③ Some students were doubtful about one of the bakes.
- ④ The group borrowed the school's kitchen.
- ⑤ The members prepared some descriptions of the bakes.

問 3 How did the members most likely feel at the end of Day 2 of the festival?

13

- ① disappointed
- ② excited
- ③ prepared
- ④ worried

第 4 問 (配点 12)

In your science class, you are writing an essay on a conservation issue in Japan. This is your most recent draft. You are now working on improvements based on comments from your teacher.

Coexisting with Bears in Rural Japan	Comments
The number of bears entering residential areas in Japan is increasing. This leads to conflict with the human population that includes crop damage, car accidents, property invasions, and even attacks on people. Killing the bears may seem like a simple solution, but this is not a good one ⁽¹⁾ $\wedge$. For example, moon bears in Japan play an important role as forest engineers. They eat plants or fruits and distribute the seeds around the forest. This greatly supports the health of the ecosystem, and therefore the presence of bears is essential to all the plants and animals of the forest. This essay will describe other methods that are being used to avoid conflict between bears and humans. The first strategy to prevent bears from coming into towns is electronic tagging. If the bears are monitored and they approach residential areas, conservation teams can locate them, scare them away and push them back into the forest. This costs a lot and requires great effort, but some local governments have adopted this method. Second, measures can be taken to reduce the attractiveness of the towns. This includes protecting crops with electric fences, strengthening the trash containers to prevent bears from taking dumped food, and trimming unnecessary fruit trees in abandoned places. These all help to prevent the bears from learning that food is available around people. Removing bushes and tall grass can also discourage bears from settling nearby ⁽²⁾ $\wedge$.	(1) It's not very clear why. Explain more clearly. (2) Expand this reason a little.

Lastly, public education on how to behave safely near bears is essential. Hikers can carry bells that warn bears to stay away. ⁽³⁾ $\wedge$ Local people can learn how to act to make a bear keep its distance if they come across one. In conclusion, a combination of monitoring bear movements, ⁽⁴⁾ conducting management, and adapting human behavior can help us to coexist with these amazing animals with which we share our environment.	(3) Add an appropriate connecting expression. (4) The underlined part does not describe your point well. Change it.
Overall Comments: This is a great start. I would certainly want to re-read your essay before I go hiking in the mountains!

問 1 Based on comment (1), which is the best expression to add? 14

- ① because it would damage the plants that people grow near the forest
- ② because the goal is coexistence and protection of the bear population
- ③ because there are many different ways to kill the bears
- ④ because there are too many bears in this area that attack people

問 2 Based on comment (2), which is the best expression to add? 15

- ① as bears can find more things to eat in people's homes
- ② as bears like to make their homes in this kind of place
- ③ as these areas can be used for growing new crops
- ④ as these areas cause bears to be frightened of people

問 3 Based on comment (3), which is the best phrase to add?

16

- ① For example
- ② In addition
- ③ In any case
- ④ Nevertheless

問 4 Based on comment (4), which is the best phrase to replace the underlined part?

17

- ① following the safety instructions
- ② getting rid of elements that attract bears to the town
- ③ learning about the town's problems
- ④ looking at environmental problems

(下書き用紙)

英語(リーディング)の試験問題は次に続く。

第 5 問 (配点 18)

You are a senior in high school. As a volunteer at your local library, you have been working to organize a literacy event for children. You wrote this email to the librarian in charge and received a reply.

July 20

Event Plan

Dear Ms. Murphy,

I am excited to be helping with the upcoming literacy event at the library. I think an event like this is a wonderful opportunity to help children to read better. I want to be a teacher in the future, so this is a great experience for me. The event schedule you asked for is given below.

Saturday, August 16

Time	Activity & Title
Morning session: Understanding stories
9:30 a.m.	Activity 1: Mary Takeda Title: Story time
10:15 a.m.	Break
10:30 a.m.	Activity 2: Louise Murphy Title: Predicting with pictures
11:15 a.m.	Activity 3: Mary Takeda Title: (undecided)
12:00 p.m.	Lunch
Afternoon session 1: Sharing stories
12:30 p.m.	Activity 4: Mary Takeda Title: (undecided)
1:15 p.m.	Activity 5: Louise Murphy Title: Reading out loud
2:00 p.m.	Break

Afternoon session 2: Making a large artwork based on a story
2:15 p.m.	Activity 6: Louise Murphy & Mary Takeda Title: (undecided)
4:00 p.m.	End

Could you check that the following information is accurate?

- Parent contact information will be collected when they fill in the application form online.
- There will be a maximum of 12 children under 9 years old participating.
- Parents should arrive to pick up their children around 4:00 p.m.
- The library will remain open to the public during this event.

Below is a list of things that still need to be decided:

- Where will the children be able to eat their lunches?
- What are the names of the remaining two activities and the artwork session?
- How should we arrange the room for the activities?

I have not finished creating the poster for this event yet. I will send a draft to you after confirming the details mentioned above.

To be honest, I do not have much experience taking care of young children. I am a little nervous, but I will do my best!

I can't wait for the literacy event to start. I'm sure it will be a lot of fun!

Best wishes,

Volunteer group representative

July 21

Re: Event Plan

Dear group representative,

Thank you for your excellent work on this. It looks like a great start!

This schedule looks correct, and you have allocated the activities well. As the literacy event will be held in the children's section of the library, the rest of the library will still be accessible to the public. For this reason, we should limit the number of children to 12 or fewer to keep noise to a minimum. We also cannot accommodate too many children with just two librarians and a few volunteers supervising the event. In reference to parent contact information, yes, it will be saved when parents fill out the application form online. However, around 4:00 p.m. as the arrival time for parents is too late. We want them to be able to watch the children introduce their work at the end.

For the large art that the children will make together, let's call it "A Jungle Adventure" as we are going to use a book about jungle animals. The other two activities have been decided as well. One will be a game in which children compete in picking up picture cards which describe words found in the story. For the other activity, children will draw pictures that go with the text from a book and explain them. Regarding lunch, it will be sunny on that day, and I think it would be nice to eat at the picnic tables outside or on the terrace. In either case, it is better to reserve the place, so please tell me which one you prefer.

I have attached a diagram for the seating during the event. Basically, let's go with this arrangement. We will have to use a mixture of square and round tables since we have a limited number of each. We can put two of the square tables together and have six children sit there. Then we can use two of the round tables. Let's put three children at each of those.

Thank you for your assistance,
Louise Murphy

📎 Attachment: Seating arrangement diagram

問 1 Based on your email, what is your motivation for helping with the event?

18

- ① To build children's confidence in reading out loud
- ② To encourage all citizens to read more
- ③ To gain experience for a future career
- ④ To share your love of stories with others

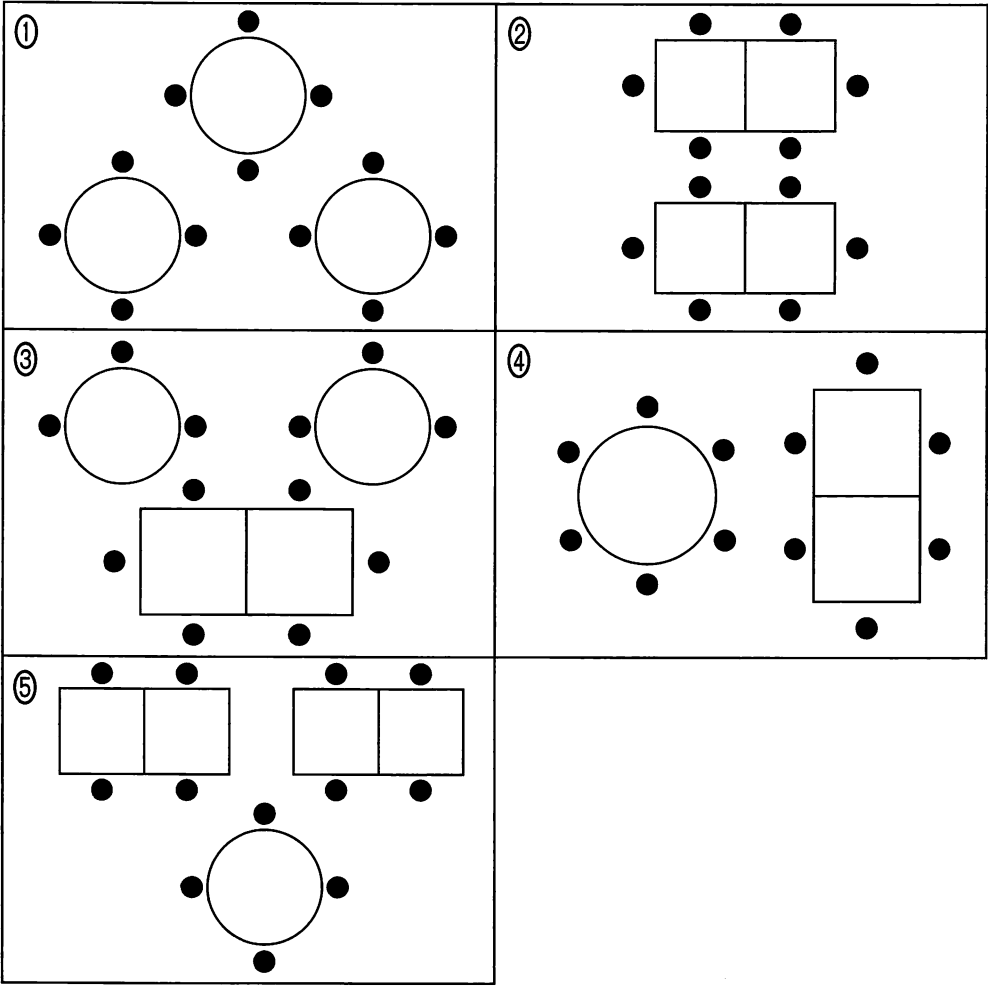

問 2 Which of these titles best matches Ms. Murphy's descriptions for Activity 3 (19) and Activity 4 (20) based on the morning and afternoon themes?

- ① Analyzing story characters
- ② Creating story pictures
- ③ Exchanging books with a partner
- ④ Making stories in groups
- ⑤ Matching vocabularies with pictures
- ⑥ Reading after the librarian

問 3 Referring to Ms. Murphy's reply, which of the following needs to be reconsidered? 21

- ① If the library should be closed
- ② One of the afternoon activities
- ③ The number of children attending
- ④ When parents arrive in the afternoon

問 4 Which diagram best represents Ms. Murphy's seating plan for the children? 22

問 5 You will email Ms. Murphy again. In your reply, which two pieces of information are you most likely to include?

23

A : The cost of supplies for the drawing activity

B : The design for the event poster

C : The number of chairs needed for making the artwork

D : The plan about the place to have lunch

① A and B

② A and C

③ A and D

④ B and C

⑤ B and D

⑥ C and D

第6問 (配点 14)

Your friend, James, wants to be a professional writer. He has written a story about a former student and her former teacher on his blog. You read it and then give him feedback.

A Circle of Inspiration: Rediscovering Joy in Teaching

By James Cohen

My name is Sophia, but to my students, I'm Miss Carter. Just last week, I spoke at a professional conference, to share ideas about lesson planning with fellow teachers. It was my first time to speak at such a conference, and following my presentation, a woman approached me. It had been ten years since my high school graduation, but I could never forget Ms. Jackson's face. Not only was she my history teacher and track and field coach, but also the reason I decided to study education at university. Her creative teaching style and warm personality were my ideal. You can imagine my disbelief when she told me she was planning on quitting teaching and retiring early. We decided to get coffee and catch up.

I told Ms. Jackson that I had thought of her a few months ago while explaining an assignment to my students. It was an adaptation of a thought-provoking activity I had done in her history class. Groups of students created a radio show featuring historical figures. One student was the host and interviewed guests from the past, highlighting their achievements, struggles, and impact on society. I modified the activity for my class, changing the radio show to a podcast, but the objective was the same. Students tried to get inside the heads of famous people from the past and responded to questions about issues relevant at the time. I reminded Ms. Jackson of how creative and practical that activity was compared to our history textbook. I told her how it improved my confidence as a teacher to offer such a learning opportunity for my students. Ms. Jackson smiled.

"It makes me so happy to hear this," she said. "Of course, I remember the historical figures interview project, but I never imagined one of my students would remember it after so many years!" She went on. "Honestly, I've been feeling discouraged in the classroom for a while now. Teaching used to energize me, but recently, it's been more challenging than rewarding. I feel like I've lost my passion.”

Not knowing what to say, I quickly changed the subject, hoping that more talk about my high school days would cheer up Ms. Jackson.

I joined the track and field team in my freshman year of high school. I hoped to compete in the longer distance running events since running came naturally to me. I could run for hours and barely feel tired. Ms. Jackson was one of the track and field coaches, and I remembered her enthusiasm. You could always hear her cheering loudly for everyone. During the first week of practice, the coaches announced that the team needed volunteers to try the long jump. Another coach demonstrated the technique while Ms. Jackson broke down the actions into simple steps.

“There are three phases to the long jump,” she explained. “First, decide which foot you will take off with. Next, determine the number of steps you’ll take on your approach. Be sure to keep your take-off foot flat on the ground for better balance.” “And remember,” Ms. Jackson explained, “the goal is distance, not height! When landing, keep your knees bent and lean forward.” While the jump looked challenging, Ms. Jackson’s explanation was easy to follow. Her clear explanation convinced me to try it, and surprisingly, I caught on right away. That season, I competed in the long jump in every track meet and gradually improved. By the time I finished high school, I’d won two regional championships. I was grateful for Ms. Jackson’s continuous encouragement back then. She gave me the confidence to try something new.

One month after our meeting at the conference, I received a text message from Ms. Jackson. I looked down at my phone, and this is what it said:

*Sophia,
I've decided to change my plans. Talking with you helped remind me of the joy and fulfillment teaching and coaching brings. Thank you.*

I smiled with happiness. I felt like I had finally repaid Ms. Jackson for all her support.

Your email feedback to James

Hey James,

I loved your blog post! I really liked how Sophia passes through various stages in her personal growth (see below).

24 → 25 → 26 → 27

I found Ms. Jackson really impressive as a teacher.

She can 28 .

Also, I was moved when Ms. Jackson texted, "I've decided to change my plans."

She meant, "I am 29 ."

On the other hand, I think you can still make the story a little better by adding a few details. You could write more about 30 and 31 , which are relevant points that could be expanded on. These details would give your characters depth and make your story more interesting.

Good luck!

問1 Choose four out of the five options (① ~ ⑤) and put them in the order they occurred.

24 → 25 → 26 → 27

- ① She is a college student studying education.
- ② She is a presenter at an educational conference.
- ③ She is a track and field champion.
- ④ She is an author of a history textbook.
- ⑤ She is an inspiration for Ms. Jackson.

問 2 Choose the correct combination of Ms. Jackson's abilities.

28

- A : communicate instructions clearly
- B : design creative classroom activities
- C : give speeches about teaching strategies
- D : make students view history as something that relates to them
- E : motivate a student to experience new things
- F : run long distances without getting tired

- ① A, B, D, and E
- ② A, B, E, and F
- ③ B, C, D, and E
- ④ B, C, E, and F

問 3 Choose the best option for

29

- ① going to continue my career
- ② not interested in coaching anymore
- ③ planning to start my own podcast
- ④ unable to attend the conference with you

問 4 Choose the best options for 30 and

31

. (The order does not matter.)

- ① Ms. Jackson's current struggles in the classroom
- ② Ms. Jackson's encouraging words enabling Sophia's long jump success
- ③ Sophia's track and field achievements
- ④ the reason Sophia tried the long jump
- ⑤ why Sophia chose her major in college

第7問 (配点 16)

You are preparing a presentation for a science project on ultraviolet light. You found some interesting information in the article below and are now making your outline.

Ultraviolet Light

We are surrounded by light every day. In fact, many different kinds of light shape our world in ways that we do not always think about. Not only does light help us see, but it also makes us feel happier and helps us sleep better. Among the many kinds of light, ultraviolet (UV) light is particularly interesting, as it affects our lives in many different ways.

UV light is a type of radiation that comes from the sun, and it is divided into three types: UVA, UVB, and UVC. UVA makes up about 95% of the UV radiation that reaches Earth and gives off the least amount of energy. However, it is potentially harmful because it can penetrate, or reach, deep into human skin. UVB is mostly blocked by the atmosphere, making up the remaining 5% of the radiation Earth receives. Exposure to UVB increases the risk of cellular damage and DNA mutations in living organisms. UVC, on the other hand, gives off the most energy and is the most dangerous. However, it is completely blocked by the Earth's atmosphere. People only encounter UVC from special products like sanitizing lamps. Besides, these products are typically built with features to protect us from the radiation.

One of the benefits of UV light is that it helps our bodies produce vitamin D, which is important for our health. Vitamin D helps the absorption of calcium, which is responsible for building strong bones and muscles. It also helps improve heart function, reduces symptoms of depression (a medical condition that makes a person feel sad or hopeless), and strengthens the immune system, which keeps us healthy. We can get a small amount of vitamin D from food, but the best natural source of it is sunlight.

While UV light is beneficial, it can also be harmful. Too much UV light damages all skin types, causing early aging, wrinkles, and sometimes even cancer. However, not all skin is affected in the same way. For instance, lighter skin burns quickly in the sun, while darker skin absorbs more UV light and burns less easily. Too much UV light can also affect our eyes, increasing the risk of cataracts, a condition where the lens of the eye becomes cloudy. Over time, it can also break down proteins in the eyes, possibly leading to loss of sight.

The same qualities of UV light that create risks for us can also be used to make us safer. For example, humans can create UVC light and use it to kill germs, tiny harmful organisms. Hospitals have been using this method to clean equipment, and even the air inside of rooms for decades. The UVC light destroys the ability of germs to reproduce, limiting their ability to spread.

Despite the effectiveness of using UVC light to clean rooms, it is necessary to understand some of the possible risks. When using UV light indoors, chemical reactions happen. These reactions turn the oxygen in a room into ozone, which is a dangerous type of gas. The ozone created can lead to more chemical reactions that produce other dangerous chemicals. As rooms often have limited airflow, these harmful substances can build up. Over time, the air becomes dangerous to breathe. When using UV light indoors, you must make sure enough fresh air is provided.

UV light is everywhere, so it is important to understand how it affects us and what we can do to protect ourselves. Although it is not realistic or healthy to avoid UV light completely, there are ways to minimize its risks. For example, when spending time outdoors, you should use sunscreen, which can help block harmful UV light. Additionally, hats and sunglasses are also great for protecting the skin and eyes. UV rays can also penetrate clouds and still cause harm, so these precautions should be taken no matter the weather. Finally, if you are using UV light inside, remember to keep a window open to reduce the effects of harmful gases.

UV light is both our friend and our enemy. It can bring us great health benefits, but if we are not careful, it can also cause great harm.

UV Light

The Reach of UV

32

Benefit of UV: helps our bodies produce vitamin D

Benefits of Vitamin D 33

- A. Blocks calcium absorption
- B. Boosts the immune system
- C. Improves mood
- D. Lowers heart-disease risk
- E. Strengthens bones and muscles

Dangers of UV Light

- Too much sun can 34 .
- Too much sun can 35 .

UV and Cleaning

- Kills germs

UV Indoors

- UV light 36 .

37

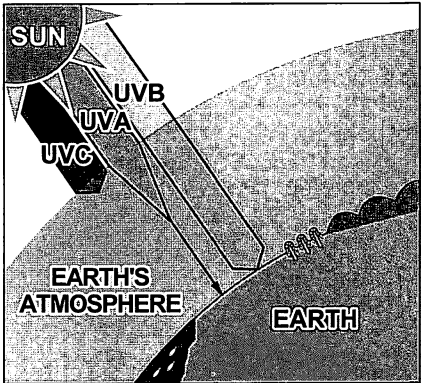

- Sunscreen
- Hats
- Sunglasses
- Airflow

問 1 You want to use a figure to show how far UV light penetrates as described in the article. Choose the best option for

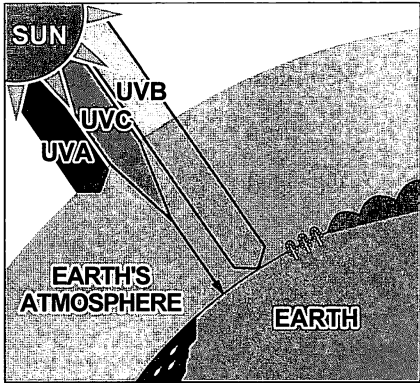

32

.

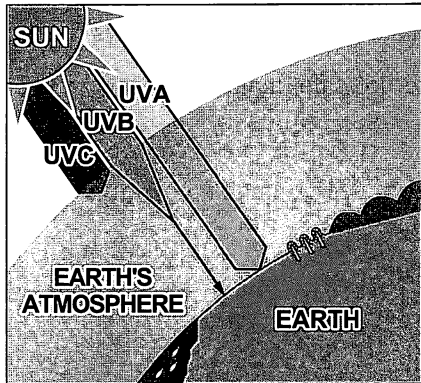

①

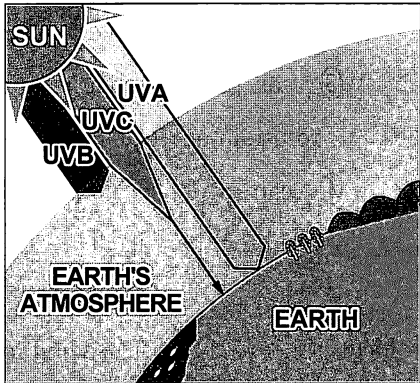

②

③

④

問 2 Under the heading, "Benefits of Vitamin D," you spotted an error in your presentation outline. Which of the following should you remove?

33

- ① A
- ② B
- ③ C
- ④ D
- ⑤ E

問3 Choose the best options for 34 and 35. (The order does not matter.)

- ① affect people with lighter skin more severely
- ② contribute to the development of vision problems
- ③ destroy light-sensitive materials in clothing
- ④ help to clear up cloudy spots on the skin
- ⑤ lead to darker-skinned people producing excess vitamin D

問4 Choose the best option for 36.

- ① can cause a chemical reaction that increases room temperature significantly, making the space feel warmer
- ② can help improve ventilation, ensuring that fresh air flows in the room
- ③ can produce chemicals that are not safe, making it dangerous for people to use in an enclosed space
- ④ can produce light with more energy, making rooms appear much brighter than usual

問5 Choose the best heading for 37.

- ① How to Treat Damaged Skin
- ② How UV Light Affects People
- ③ Ways to Live a Healthy Life
- ④ Ways to Reduce UV Light Risk

(下書き用紙)

英語(リーディング)の試験問題は次に続く。

第 8 問 (配点 17)

You are working on an essay about whether all restaurants in Japan should be required to provide doggy bags. You will follow the steps below.

Step 1: Read and understand various viewpoints on making restaurants provide doggy bags.

Step 2: Take a position on restaurants being required to provide doggy bags.

Step 3: Create an outline of your essay using additional sources.

[Step 1] Read various sources

Author A (Environmental Advocate)

Providing doggy bags at restaurants could help reduce food waste significantly. Many customers want to take leftovers home but feel awkward asking for a bag, especially in more expensive restaurants. If doggy bags were standard, people wouldn't need to feel embarrassed, and more leftover food could be saved rather than thrown out with the trash. This small step could contribute to environmental goals by cutting down waste and making better use of our resources. If all restaurants offered doggy bags, it would be easier for people to protect the environment without much effort.

Author B (Restaurant Owner)

Offering doggy bags could improve customer satisfaction and potentially boost business. Customers appreciate when they can take home extra food instead of feeling like they have to waste it. This simple option could attract more diners, as many would choose a restaurant that is more environmentally friendly. Some casual restaurant owners might worry about extra costs, but in reality, this change could be beneficial for them. In particular, casual dining places where food portions are often large would gain more satisfied customers. For us, it seems like a win-win solution.

Author C (Health Inspector)

Forcing restaurants to use doggy bags raises some real food safety concerns. Once food leaves the restaurant, it may not be refrigerated properly, leading to the growth of unhealthy bacteria. In other words, leftover food could make customers sick if they don't handle it properly at home. Restaurants can't control how leftovers are stored after they are taken home, so encouraging them to give out food in doggy bags could result in more cases of food poisoning. It's just too risky to require restaurants to take an action that may harm public health.

Author D (Chef)

Making doggy bags a requirement may harm high-end dining experiences. As a chef, I carefully plan portion sizes and presentation in all my dishes. That precise presentation is a big part of the meal's appeal. Having to provide doggy bags would disrupt this balance and completely change how customers experience the food. For high-class restaurants, where the focus is on a special dining experience, making restaurants provide doggy bags wouldn't work. They might make sense for casual places, but from my perspective, they could damage the atmosphere and the art that chefs work to create.

Author E (Customer)

I like the idea of taking food home instead of letting it go to waste, but I also worry about the possible effect on prices and portion sizes. If restaurants are required to provide doggy bags, they might start offering larger portions and charging more to cover costs, which would be a huge downside. As a customer, I don't want to end up paying extra or dealing with oversized meals just so I can bring more food home to eat later. While it's a convenient option, I think it should remain just that — an option, not a requirement.

問 1 Both Authors B and D mention that 38.

- ① casual dining establishments might benefit more from doggy bags
- ② customers are very concerned about how doggy bags impact the dining experience
- ③ providing doggy bags could lead to increased costs for restaurants
- ④ the use of doggy bags lines up with environmental goals

問 2 Author C implies that 39.

- ① customers need to be educated on how to store leftovers safely
- ② requiring doggy bags might help maintain public health
- ③ requiring restaurants to provide doggy bags may lead to more cases of food poisoning
- ④ restaurants should provide doggy bags only when customers request them

[Step 2] Take a position

問 3 Now that you understand the various viewpoints, you have taken a position on whether all restaurants in Japan should be required to provide doggy bags, and have written it out as below. Choose the best options to complete

40

 —

42

. (You must have all of 40

 —

42 correct to get points.).

Your position: All restaurants in Japan should be required to provide doggy bags.

- Authors

40

 and

41 support your position.

- The main argument of the two authors:

42

Options for 40

 and

41

 (the order does not matter) :

- ① A
- ② B
- ③ C
- ④ D
- ⑤ E

Options for

42

 :

- ① Customers would appreciate restaurants providing doggy bags as an environmentally friendly option.
- ② Providing doggy bags would benefit all dining restaurants where portion sizes are typically larger.
- ③ Requiring doggy bags could create extra costs for restaurants, especially high-end ones.
- ④ Requiring doggy bags would encourage restaurants to offer smaller portions to avoid waste.

[Step 3] Create an outline using Sources A and B

Outline of your essay:

We Should Require All Restaurants in Japan to Offer Doggy Bags

Introduction

Food loss is a huge problem in the world today. By creating laws that make restaurants provide doggy bags to customers, we can reduce food loss while improving people’s lives.

Body

Reason 1: [From Step 2]

Reason 2: [Based on Source A] (43)

Reason 3: [Based on evidence (44) from Source B]

Conclusion

That’s why doggy bags need to become available in all dining establishments.

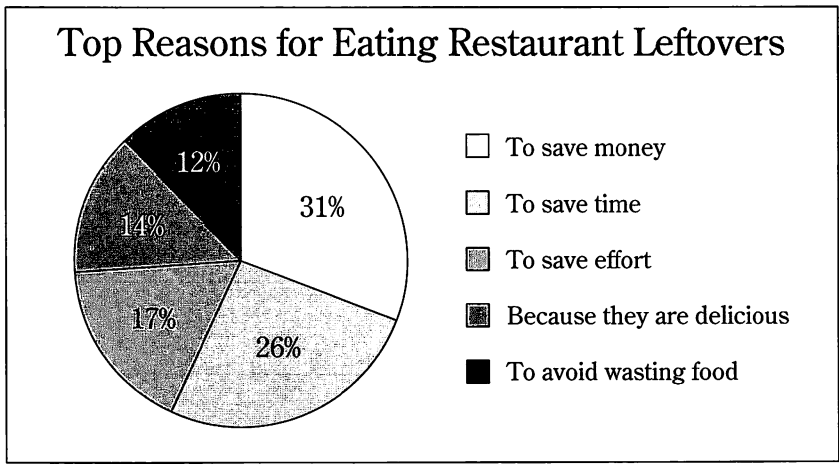

Source A

Introducing doggy bags at restaurants may benefit not only the environment but also the health of everyday diners. By providing a way to take leftovers home, restaurants could encourage customers to eat smaller portions during meals instead of pressuring them to finish everything on their plates. This shift may help reduce overeating, which is linked to various health issues. According to supporters of this new push for doggy bag laws, allowing customers to save extra food for later can encourage a more thoughtful approach to dining. For example, if a customer were given the option to take home their extra meat and potatoes from a heavy meal, they would be less likely to overeat in the first place. Supporters point out that using doggy bags could lead to the average consumer making better dietary choices and becoming more aware of their eating habits. This small step towards improving our health could also go a long way to preventing food loss.

Source B

A recent survey highlights the main reasons why people consume leftovers. Saving money tops the list at 31%, followed closely by saving time at 26%. The findings suggest that offering doggy bags may not only prevent food waste but also support the customers' desires to get the most out of their meals.

問 4 Based on Source A, which of the following is the most appropriate for Reason 2?

43

- ① Allowing customers to take home leftovers could make restaurants seem more customer-friendly and environmentally responsible, helping their image with health-conscious customers.
- ② Giving customers doggy bags might promote healthier habits by encouraging them to eat smaller portions at meals, which can reduce overeating.
- ③ Offering doggy bags helps restaurant owners because it could promote sales by making their establishments more attractive to customers who care about waste reduction.
- ④ Providing doggy bags may encourage customers to take leftovers home, which can help reduce food waste by limiting the amount of food thrown away by restaurants.

問 5 For Reason 3, you have decided to write, “Customers would appreciate the option to make the most of their meals.” Based on Source B, which option best supports this statement?

44

- ① According to the survey, people choose to eat leftovers to avoid waste, suggesting that preventing food waste is a higher priority than saving money.
- ② According to the survey, people choose to eat leftovers to avoid waste, suggesting that they prefer to enjoy their delicious meals in restaurants.
- ③ Many customers prefer to save money, time and effort by eating leftovers, as shown by survey data indicating that these are the top three reasons for eating leftovers.
- ④ People save time and effort by consuming leftovers at home, indicating that reducing food waste is less of a priority for customers than convenience.